A Medical Thermal Tourism City since Ancient Times...

In our region, water is life and health and we have had this for thousands of years. Denizli is one of the richest thermal water resources in the world. In the beltway that lies between Pamukkale, Karahayıt, Akköy, Yenicekent, and Sarayköy, our medically beneficial and quality thermal springs where the temperature of water ranges between 36°C and 240°C allow for thermal tourism and treatment year round. Denizli's thermal springs are good for heart disease, rheumatoid arthritis, blood pressure, rachitism, skin, eye, and nervous disorders and can be healing for gastritis, vasculitis, and renovascular disease.

Denizli: The Land of Delicious Meals...

Denizli cuisine is based on vegetable dishes, especially eggplant such as stuffed dried eggplants, roasted eggplant. The oca made in Çal's Hançalar District is quite delicious. Black eyed peas salad with garlic sauce, mallow salad, sprout salad are local salads while cat kidney bean soup, lentil soup, tomato soup, tarhana soup, Ovmaç soup, etc. are local soups. Main meat dishes are Tas Kapaması (beef stew on a bed of rice), Kumbar Dolması (casings stuffed with liver and rice), vinegar-cooked meat, beef with chickpeas, tandoori, Kol Dolması (stuffed lamb's arm), Ciğer Sarma (lamb's liver and rice wrapped in lamb's skin), Arabaşı (spicy soup with dumplings), Keşkek (wheat meal), and Saçta İşkembe (tripe sauteed on a wok). Beurek (savory dough pastry) and dessert varieties are typical to Aegean region. Yufka, Şipit, and Bazlama are homemade bread types. Traditional snacks in the winter months are popcorn, roasted wheat, walnuts, chestnuts, and fruits, cucumbers, melons, and watermelons in the summer months. Pumpkin dessert, pestil (dried fruit roll-up), baklava, and asure (wheat dessert with legumes, dried fruits and nuts) are famous. Additionally, Denizli is famous for its Denizli kabob, a local taste and long-held tradition. It is a type of tandoori baked in a wood furnace that requires great skill. Lamb meat is slow-roasted in a special wood furnace and served without utensils.

Denizli Rooster, Longest Crow in the World

Denizli Rooster is local to this area, a unique species thanks to its pose, posture, and long crow, dating back to the antique ages. The rooster figures inscribed on marble and kandils in Laodicea indicate that the Denizli rooster was around back in those days as well.
